Extinction Edge The Extinction Cycle

The Holocene extinction, otherwise referred to as the Sixth extinction or Anthropocene extinction, is a current event, and is one of the most significant extinction events in the history of the Earth. This ongoing extinction of species coincides with the present Holocene epoch (approx. 11,700 years), and is a result of human activity. This large number of extinctions spans numerous families of ...

The Sixth Extinction: An Unnatural History is a 2014 non-fiction book written by Elizabeth Kolbert and published by Henry Holt and Company. The book argues that the Earth is in the midst of a modern, man-made, sixth extinction. In the book, Kolbert chronicles previous mass extinction events, and compares them to the accelerated, widespread extinctions during our present time.

The technology for fully electric double decker buses (edit: to run for long distances) is not there yet unfortunately. Dublin has started transitioning its bus fleet to electric hybrid, it wanted to transition to fully electric but the distances that buses in Dublin cover are just too long for a bus to operate effectively on a single charge, I'd assume the same for London.

Geologists contend that Pangea's formation seems to have been partially responsible for the mass extinction event at the end of the Permian Period, particularly in the marine realm. As Pangea formed, the extent of shallow water habitats declined, and land barriers inhibited cold polar waters from circulating into the tropics. This is thought to have reduced dissolved oxygen levels in the warm ...
