The Spider and the Fly is a poem by Mary Howitt (1799-1888), published in 1828. The first line of the poem is "'Will you walk into my parlour?' said the Spider to the Fly." The story tells of a cute spider who ensnares a cunning fly through the use of seduction and flattery.

Courtesy requires the return of all civil greetings--those of servants included. Only the most serious causes can justify "a cut". In bowing, the head should be best; a mere lowering of the eyelids, affected by some people, is rude; but etiquette does not permit a familiar nod, except between business men, or very intimate friends.

A gentlemen's club, or traditional gentlemen's club, is a private social club originally set up by and for British upper-class men in the 18th century, and popularised by English upper middle-class men and women in the late 19th century and early 20th century.. Many countries outside the United Kingdom have prominent gentlemen's clubs, mostly those associated with the British Empire.
